Even though accomplishment of doctoral research to write up this thesis might be the efforts of one person at the keyboard, but there are many amazing on-screen and off-screen individuals who owe the reason of being part of this thesis and without whom this work would not have touched its summit.

In the foremost place, I would like to convey my sincere gratitude to my research guide Prof. (Dr.) Anjali Patel, for making me acquainted to this impressive and astonishing field of catalysis. I am grateful to her for providing me with all the necessary facilities to conduct this research, even going out of her way. Her invaluable help and guidance during my entire doctoral research have driven successful learning. Her relentless enforcement helped me to remain engrossed on achieving my goal. Regardless of her sincere dedication to numerous other responsibilities as the former Officiating Head and as a professor of the department, she has always been focused to my queries and made it a point to solve them to the best of her abilities. Her keenness, fundamental understanding on research and her quest for providing benchmark work, has made an influencing impression on me. Without her tutelage, endless support and continuous feedback, this research and doctoral thesis would not have been feasible. Her methodical and editorial advice along with the visions on the accomplishments of academic research was indispensable for completion of this thesis work. Apart from this, it is inevitable to express my eternal gratitude for her mentorship which has guaranteed my all-round development as a person, and to become a better human being. Her resolute valour and principles will always inspire me.

I would like to thank The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda for financial support in terms of University Research Fellowship.

My sincere thanks to Prof. Ashutosh Bedekar, Officiating Head, and Prof. Shailesh Shah, Prof. Dr. Anjali Patel and Prof. Neelima Kulkarni, Former Head/s, Department of Chemistry, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda, Vadodara for providing infrastructure facility.

I am grateful to the following people and institutions for their support during the different stages of my research work.

BET	FIST – I, DST
TGA and GC–MS	Department of Chemistry, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda
EDS Analysis	Prof. Vandana Rao, Metallurgy Department, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda
Powder XRD	SUD-Chemie, Vadodara
Solid state MAS NMR	SAIF, IIT – Bombay and IISC, Bengaluru
TEM	SAIF, IIT – Bombay
Dye degradation studies	Dr. Varsha Brahmakhatri, Jain University, Bangalore

First of all, I would like to thank Lord Ganesha who has been my sole inspiration, and who's many blessings and guidance have made me who I am today. The thesis would not have come to a successful completion, without the assistance of certain people with whom I am indebted for their contribution in various stages of my work. I am grateful to my seniors, Dr. Soyebkhan Pathan, Dr. Priyanka Solanki, Dr. Rajesh Sadasivan for being my enduring supports in the lab and always by my side at all times and Dr. Anish Patel for his valuable counsels on my research and being there whenever I needed his help and assistance. I thank them with all my heart. My earnest thanks to my colleagues Mr. Jay Patel, Ms. Debatrayee Dasgupta and Ms. Margi Joshi for providing a jovial environment.

I am also thankful to all non-teaching staff especially Mr. Rane, Mr. Ninad Mehta and Mrs. Revathi, Department of Chemistry for their assistance throughout my research work.

I am thankful to friends and colleagues/former colleagues of the department, Dr. Viraj Bhanvadia, Dr. Gaurav Upadhyay, Dr. Heta Patel, Mr. Sanjiv Tomer, Dr. Rina Soni and Mr. Hiten Raval for their friendly behaviour, help and support. A special thanks to all the teaching staff for their help and guidance during the course of my research work.

The most important support systems of my life have been my family. No amount of words would suffice to thank my beloved mother and father for letting me follow my dream and inspiring me spiritually, yet always being there and having my back throughout. Thank you, my dear sister Devanshi and my dear brother Rahul, for continuously encouraging me and pushing me to go on, for giving me happy days and helping me to overcome the worries of my struggle. I am blessed to find a best friend, soulmate and a partner in one person, my dearest husband Hiren. He has always been there for me, cheering in all my achievements and holding me back in all my weak times throughout this journey. His contributions in inspiring me to move forward till the finish line are uncountable.

I am glad to express my gratitude to my parents-in-law and my brother-in-law Nishit, for constant support and words of wisdom during my research tenure. Loads of love and special thanks to my friends, Dr. Jessica Patel, Dr. Viraj Bhanvadia and Ms. Ruchi Modi whose words of encouragement have kept me going through the ups and downs of my odyssey.
