

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The investigator expresses her gratitude to her guide, Prof. D.B. Desai, Head, CASE, for his encouragement, guidance, support and, above all, the intellectual freedom allowed to her at all stages of this work.

The investigator is also grateful to Sister M. Hughes, Principal, Loreto College, Calcutta, who has always encouraged initiative and professional growth among the staff, for so readily granting her leave for the period of study.

Sincere thanks are extended to the teachers who participated in the study.

The investigator genuinely appreciates all the help and cooperation she received from her fellow-researchers and the staff at CASE, particularly Sarojben, the Librarian.

Last but not the least, the investigator acknowledges with love and pride her family's generosity in ungrudgingly allowing her leave of absence from home for extended periods of time at the cost of much inconvenience to themselves. She is especially indebted to her 'Woman Friday', Asha Gomes, without whose holding the fort during her absences from home, this research would not have been possible and this thesis would not have seen the light of the day.

This research was made possible through a three year teacher fellowship awarded by the UGC.
