ACKNOWLEDGMENT

I feel it is my duty to express my gratitude, first of all, to the Department of Education, Government of Andhra Pradesh, for permitting me to take up this Research Work for the award of Doctoral Degree in Education from Maharaja Sayaji Rao University, Baroda.

Next, I must thank the authorities of Maharaja Sayaji Rao University, Baroda in general, and the authorities of Faculty of Education and Psychology in particular for accepting me as an external scholar for the Ph.D. Course and appointing a guide for the same.

I am highly grateful to Dr. B.P. Lulla for agreeing to be my guide and helping me with his invaluable suggestions, advice and guidance from time to time, which has contributed largely to my being able to complete the work.

I also humbly thank Dr. C.S. Subba Rao, Professor of Education, for the inspiration and local guidance which I received from him.

I am very grateful, also, to Professor K. Vedanta Chary and Dr. Sharada Devi Garudacharya, Sr. Maria Antoinette ^{and} and Sr. Mary Pia (the former and the present Principals of St. Ann's College of Education, Secunderabad) for their help and encouragement in taking up and completing the work.

I feel grateful to the Principals and Lecturers and Student Teachers of all the Colleges of Education in Andhra Pradesh for their ready co-operation in filling up my questionnaire with their response and suggestions. In this connection, I feel, a special mention needs to be made of Sri G. Manohar Rao, the then Principal, Comprehensive College of Education, Hyderabad, Sri K. Nagabhushan Rao, the then Principal of Comprehensive College of Education, Rajahmundry, Sri P. Konda Reddy, the then Principal of the College of Education, Kurnool, and Smt. Laxmi, Principal, Andhra Mahila Sabha, College of Education, Hyderabad, Mr. G.N.Vyapari, Principal, N.S.R. College of Education, Hyderabad and Prof. Srinivasan of Sri Venkateswara University for being specially helpful.

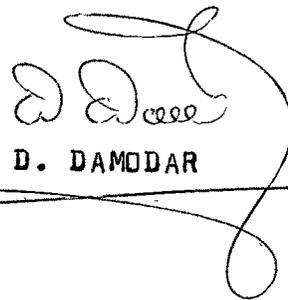

I also thank all the heads and teachers of co-operating schools for giving me much valuable information during the "On-the-spot-study and Interview".

(iii)

I would like also to thank the Department of Teacher Education, N.C.E.R.T., Delhi for providing me with the relevant literature, concerning my investigation and necessary guidance.

Last, but not the least, I express my sincere thanks to all other individuals who have in one way or other, contributed to the successful completion of my work.
