VADODARA - THROUGH AGES

Very often known as the cultural capital of Gujarat. Vadodara may not have had a colourful history like Calcutta or Bombay or seen the great empire builders like Delhi. But then, unlike these cities, its history begins somewhere in the mid-pleistocene period. There are evidences of the existance of the early man of old stone age at the Mahi River valley at a number of sites within 10 to 20 kms. to the North-East of the present Vadodara.

Around the beginning of the christian Era, a small township seems to have developed on the right bank of the river Vishwamitri. It came to be known as Ankotakka (present day Akota). The township of Ankotakka developed during the rule of the Guptas and Vallabhis. But a severe flood in 600 A.D. forced the inhabitants to abandon the township and move away to the East of Ankotakka. This formed the nucleus of a new township name Vadpadraka possibly due to the profuse presence of banyan trees which are comparatively many even today. The development of Vadodara was rapid from 11th Centure A.D. to 14th Century A.D. in 1500 A.D. when Vadodara was given as Jagir by Muhamad Begda, the then Sultan of Gujarat, to his son prince Khail Khan, he built the modern fort of Vadodara. The fort was strong and well built and hence considering the safety aspect, the inhabitants of nereby villages came and settled here. Several lakes were then constructed. Within the next two centuries, the area adjacent to the fort also became inhabited. Vadodara has later inhabited during the Maratha period as indicated by the coins and pottery.

For the people of Vadodara today, its history begins with Sayajirao III. Vadodara's identity can be summed up in its composite culture, catholicity of outlook and general enlightenment. There is a stamp of one person on Vadodara's identity and that person is Sayajirao III. You cannot speak of any aspect of this city without reference to him. Vadodara's identity is Sayajirao's contribution.

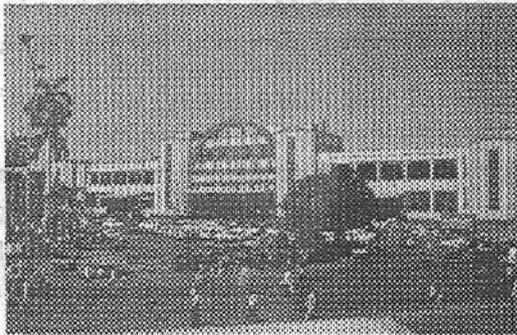

STAR TRAVELS - Authorised Railway Agent ☎ : 794036, 794297

Under Sayajirao's rule Vadodara flourished so much so that it ranked second only to Hyderabad of Nizam among the princely states in the country. He introduced manifold reforms which included arrangement of electricity supply in Vadodara State, mechanisation of manufacturing units, co-operative movements free and compulsory education and introduction of prohibition.

That Vadodara is now on the cultural, educational and economic map of the country is largely owing to Sayajirao III. Whatever heritage this city has is the legacy of this great ruler who moulded the character of his subjects. After an illustrious life spanning over 76 eventful years, this great hero, who was adopted at the age of 12 years by the widow of the last ruler of the original Gaekwas family Maharaja Khanderao, went for his heavenly abode in 1939.

Vadodara has witnessed establishment of medium and large scale industries. With great strides in economic field, the city has giant industrial complexes and public undertakings like Gujarat Refinery, Indian Petrochemicals, Gujarat State Fertilizers, Heavy Water Project, Oil & Natural Gas Commission etc.

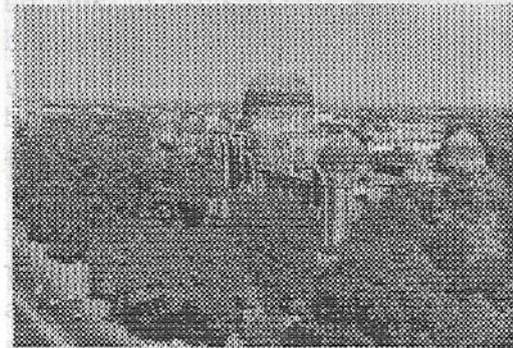

Today the city is situated on both the banks of the river Vishwamitri and is famous as cultural capital of Gujarat and centre of educational activities. The population of the city is approx. 1.8 million and is projected to be two million by the turn of the century.

11. JUBILEE GARDEN :

Situated in the Raopura area, this lovely garden has excellent laws, flower beds and rows of trees. It was laid out to commemorate the silver Jubilee of Sir Sayajirao III. In its centre is a circular wooden pavillion to the west of which is compassionate, quiet, meditating Buddha sitting crossed legs in lotus.

12. PRATAP VILAS PALACE ✓

Designed by Mr. Stevens in renaissance architecture, it houses the Railways Staff College the main training centre of the Indian Railways. The college is equipped with a beautiful mini railway model room showing different types of railway operations including track signalling.

13. MURAL PAINTINGS AT TAMBEKARWADA

Tambekarwada is situated on Pratap Road, Raopura area of the city. Bhaui Tambekar was a Diwan or Minister of erstwhile Vadodara State to Maharaja Ganpat Rao Gaekwad between 1849 and 1854. As the ruler was weak and not properly educated, the administration of the state was entirely in the hands of the Diwan.

During the 17th and 18th centuries, Fresco paintings received a stimulus in Gujarat. Vadodara itself possesses probably the best specimens of mural paintings. They adorn the walls, doors and ceilings of the building called Tambekarwads. It is a spacious four storeyed and constructed in an oblong fashion. The paintings suffered due to careless hands who often whitewashed them. Most of these paintings were restored by the A.S.I. These are at present seen in the first and second floors.

The wall paintings belonging to the first half on the 19th century are typical of the age and represent epic scenes in the life of the people including some of those of the westerners are also represented as in an air view. Hence that which is at a distant is placed above the one nearer. The paintings speak well of the control the artist hand on his brush.

These frescoes on the whole are marked by gracefulness, proportionate delineation and color contrast. These paintings are well looked after. The chemical treatments to these painting are periodically attended to by the Archaeological Survey of India. It is open to all during office hours on all week days.

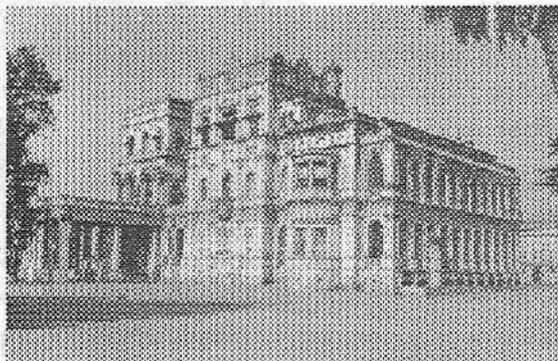

14. MANDVI :

This imposing pavillion known as the Mandvi gate was built during the Mughal period and was restored in 1736 A.D. by the Governor Malharao Maloji under the orders of Damaji Rao II (1732-1768 A.D.) It is a square pavillion with three bold arched openings on each of the four sides. The upper storeys erected on the flat roof of the Pavillion are of a later date and were probably constructed during the 19th Century. This pavillion might have remained as a market place (Mandvi) interspersed by two spacious streets dividing into four parts meeting in the centre. It is illuminated on special festivals.

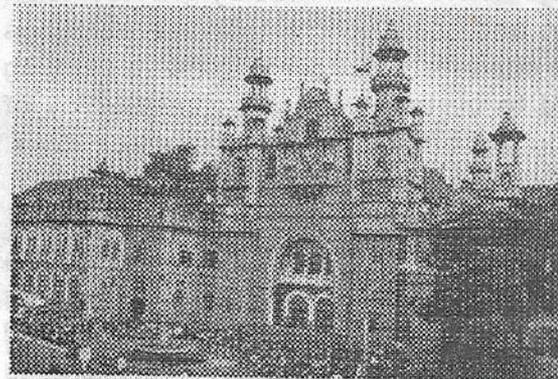

STAR TRAVELS - Authorised Railway Agent ☎ : 794036, 794297

15. NAZARBAUG PALACE :

Situated in the old walled city near Mandvi Clock Tower, it is the oldest palace built in old classic style by Malhar Rao Gaekwad in the late 19th century. Today the palace is in ruin and not open to the tourists.

16. NYAYA MANDIR :

Nyaya Mandir or Temple of Justice, is a magnificent and massive building built in Mixed Indo-Sarcenic and European style by Sayaji Rao III. It is two storeyed with large courts and a fine central hall decorated with mosaic work. A beautiful marble statue of Chimnabai, the first queen of Sayaji Rao III adorns the hall. The building is used at present as a District Court.

17. LAHERIPURA GATE :

Located to the east of the district court Nyayamandir is the picturesque Laheripura gate. It is the western gateway to the old Vadodara city - a fortified part of the city. The gate was erected in the 16th century by Khalilkhan, the son and successor of Mehmud Begda the Sultan of Gujarat. The gate still has a magnificent look and is eye catching when illuminated on special festivals.

STAR TRAVELS - Shop No.33, Municipal Shopping Centre,

18. KHANDERAO MARKET :

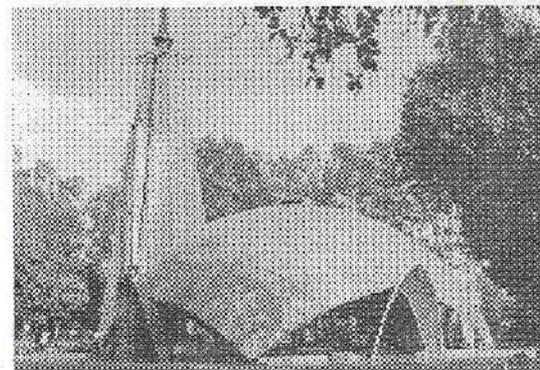

This is a palatial building erected by Sayaji Rao III in 1906-07 at a cost of about Rs. 5 lakhs. It was presented by him as a gift to the Municipality on the occasion of the Silver Jubilee Celebrations of his administration. The Municipal Offices are located in this building. The main entrance resembles in architecture with that of the gate of Dabhoi Fort. The perforated stone parapets are after style of the Agra Screens.

19. E.M.E. TEMPLE : (DAKSHINAMOORTHY TEMPLE)

Ph. : 481764 Timings : 6 A.M. to 8 P.M.

Situated in the cantonment near Fatehgunj is the beautiful Shiva temple. Managed and maintained by the "Jawans" of E.M.E., this temple is made of alluminium and some alloys. Unlike all other temples, this beautiful Shiva temple is made of alluminium and it is a place of religious harmony. A cultural centre has also been developed by the E.M.E. around the temple where good sculptures of Gujarat, pavilions etc. are nicely preserved. Idols of Gods and Goddesses are beautifully placed on both the side walkways and they look very attractive when illuminated at night everyday. FESTIVALS

The people of Vadodara celebrate almost all the festivals alike. There are however some festivals which attract many tourists from various parts of India and abroad. Major festivals are given below.

1. NAVRATRI :

Cosmopolitan Vadodara, the cultural capital of Gujarat is the focus of the Navratri Festival. The whole city undergoes a colourful transformation. A variety of cultural programmes are held. Ras-Garbas are performed and people remain absorbed in the ecstasy of these dances, which very often continue from dusk to dawn. The whole-hearted enthusiastic participation of the people of Vadodara, makes this festival so very special.

2. KITE FESTIVAL :

Makar Sankranti or Uttarayan is a festival that heralds a change of season marking the movement of the sun into the northern hemisphere. The festival, falls on January 14 each year. In Gujarat, Makar Sankranti is celebrated as the Kite-flying day.

From dawn to dusk, people at all ages fly kites rejoicing in the spirit of the day. The blue January sky is enlivened by kites of different colours and hues. Crowded rooftops, fun-loving rivalry to outdo each other, and delicious Gujarati feast are the hall-marks of the day.

3. GANESH UTSAV :

Ganesh Utsav is one such another festival which is celebrated with great rejoicing throughout the city. This 10 day long festival is the time to worship lord Ganesh. Big and small idols of Lord Ganesh with live electrical decoration is a major attraction for everyone. The festival falls in the month of August or September.
