

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

On completion of this study I am full of gratitude to many people who have in their own unique ways contributed to the study. A mention of them all by name here is an almost impossible task. However, I want to express my thanks in particular:

To Dr. S. Roy, for encouraging me to study this new area of educational research, guiding me along at every step and reading through and commenting upon the first drafts of the thesis. He has been truly a 'facilitator' all throughout the study.

To Prof. M.S. Yadav, Head, Department of Education, for the encouragement and interest he has been showing in the study and, above all, for providing every facility for the conduct of the study.

To Sr. Stella, Principal, Convent of Jesus and Mary School, Baroda, for allowing me to use the school for the study and providing me the facilities required.

To the teachers and students of the same school, who were the subjects of this study, for so willingly cooperating with the requirements of the study without which this study could not have been completed.

To Prof. Joe Wittmer, Chairperson, Counselor Education Department, College of Education, University of Florida, for his valuable comments on the research proposal and for sending me a copy of his 'Facilitative Teaching: A Self-Instruction Module.'

To Mrs. S. Padhye, Librarian, Centre of Advanced Study in Education, for her promptness in getting books needed in connection with the study.

To the staff and Research Fellows at the Centre whose innumerable interactions with the investigator enriched the quality of the study.

To Fr. Varghese Palamattam, for the careful proof reading of the thesis and making the necessary corrections.

To Messers K.A. Patel and M.L. Chunara, for their meticulous stenciling and Mr. S. Betkar, for his neat cyclostyling of the thesis.

And to Anita, for her sustained support and encouragement and for shouldering alone much of the responsibility for looking after Priya and the home. Without this support I would not have been able to devote time and energy to the study.
