First and foremost, I would like to express deep feelings of gratitude to my research supervisor Prof. (Dr.) Anjali Patel for introducing me to this exciting field of drug delivery and for her dedicated help, advice and inspiration for which I shall always remain indebted. I have been amazingly fortunate to have an advisor who gave me the freedom to explore on my own and at the same time the guidance to recover when my steps faltered. Her observations and comments helped me to establish the overall direction of the research and to move forward with investigation in depth. Her patience and support helped me overcome many crisis situations and finish this thesis. I thank her for providing me with the opportunity to work with a talented team of researchers. Her enthusiasm, integral view on research and her mission for providing high-quality work, has made a deep impression on me. During our course of interaction during the last four and half years, I have learnt extensively from her, including how to raise new possibilities, how to approach a problem by systematic thinking and decision making. I am also thankful to her for encouraging the use of correct grammar and consistent notation in my writings and for carefully reading and commenting on countless revisions of this thesis. I owe her lots of thanks for having me shown this way of research, cooperation, for facilitating all the requirements, and most important of all the freedom to work. I am really glad to be associated with her and her constant guidance and support will always help me going ahead.
